UM Stronger, Pantzer Tells Council of 50

Pres. Robert T. Pantzer told the Council of 50 Saturday the University has become bigger and stronger during the past year, while striving to better serve the students.

Mr. Pantzer addressed the council that serves as a sounding board for the University. Council members represent many occupations and areas in Montana. The council permits those outside the University to keep up with University issues and offer suggestions.

He said the biennial budget, authorized by the legislative assembly, was increased about 33 per cent over the previous biennial budget.

The University could have used an increase of 50 per cent, but the legislature did its best to support higher education, Mr. Pantzer said.

The $8.5 million budget for next year is about $1.5 million more than the budget for this year, Mr. Pantzer said.

He said the University building program is proceeding well. Jesse Hall, the first high-rise dormitory, is completed. The second high-rise dormitory, Aber Hall, is under construction and expected to be occupied about January, 1968.

The Biological Station at Flathead Lake is nearing completion and will be used for the summer session. One hundred apartment units in Elliott Village will be open fall quarter.

Construction of the new Student Union is proceeding according to schedule, Mr. Pantzer said. The University has been authorized to start a science complex and a football-track facility. The legislature has appropriated about $200,000 for renovation projects.

Laurence Gale, academic vice president, discussed problems of registration. He said the faculty has decided to hold open registration beginning fall quarter, 1967.

With open registration, sections of courses will still be limited, but all courses will be available for students sometime during the academic year, Mr. Gale said.

The objective of the law school is to relate law to contemporary problems through programs of education and service, Robert Sullivan, dean of the law school, said.

Some service programs involve research by faculty members, who work independently or for state committees, he said.

Another program features legal internships under the National Defender Project and the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act of 1964, Mr. Sullivan said. Seventeen students will be working under these projects this summer.

Research projects of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research were summarized by Norman E. Taylor, administrative vice president and former bureau director.

He said nine research projects involving about $18,300 were completed during 1966-67 and four more projects underway will involve more than $34,000.

Bureau studies include employment, highways and medical facilities.

Mr. Taylor said the bureau coordinates state technical services programs that are carried on by UM, MSU and the Montana College of Mineral Science and Technology at Butte.

Projects include a technical services group that aids Montana firms wanting technical assistance, a soil technology workshop and a mining methods and equipment bulletin.

Regents to Get AWS Letter

A letter written by the AWS Rules and Regulations Committee asking the Board of Regents to reconsider women's housing regulations was approved yesterday by AWS Senate and will be sent to the Board of Regents.

The resolution to send the letter passed 16-1.

The letter asks the Board of Regents to consider giving women who have accumulated 45 credits the option of living off-campus, or the opportunity to appeal to live off-campus on the basis of parental consent, GPA and character references. The letter also suggests a relaxation of hours in University housing.

Alice Windsor, whose camp-in on the Oval, April 26, protested UM women's housing regulations, was pleased with the action of AWS.

"I think that their action shows the girls are interested in getting the housing regulation changed," Miss Windsor said. "It was encouraging to me."

Associate Dean of Students Maurine Clow said, "If the girls want to change housing regulations, they have every right to petition."

Last week Miss Windsor registered with Dean Clow and signed-out to spend the week in her off-campus apartment. She said she tried to sign-out to her apartment this week but Dean Clow refused to sign her slip.

According to the regulations, women who register with the associate dean of students will be granted special out-of-residence permission for: absences on days other than Friday or Saturday; visiting friends and relatives living in Missoula any night including Friday and Saturday and to remain in town during vacation; authorized University trips such as debate trips and music tours, and ski trips and weekend house parties of University groups.

Miss Windsor tried to sign-out to visit friends in Missoula. She was granted permission to sign-out under this provision last week.

"I plan to check into the validity of the Dean's right to deny the permission," Miss Windsor said.

"The rule reads women will be granted permission by registering," she said. "I don't see where it implies securing the Dean of Students' permission, and I feel that I should be able, under this rule, to sign out to visit friends in Missoula."

Dean Clow said that she did not sign Miss Windsor's slip because she has not really moved out of her apartment and she cannot sign-out to live off-campus.

"Girls are given permission to sign out during the week for specific reasons, to go to a brother's commencement or to a cousin's wedding," Dean Clow said. "To sign-out to go to a place from which she has not moved is not a specific circumstance. The Board of Regents requires girls under 21 to be in University residences."

Clapp to Deliver Dedication Talk

Francis Clapp ex-'39, son of former UM President Charles H. Clapp, will give the Jesse Hall dedication address next Sunday at 2:30.

Mr. Clapp is a long-time friend of the Jesse family, according to Maurine Clow, UM associate dean of students.

The dedication will be followed by tours of the dormitory led by Jesse residents.

Richard H. Jessee's three children will travel to Missoula for the dedication.

The ceremony will be in the 11th floor lounge.

Student Recital Tonight at 8:15

William Simmons, the first candidate accepted by the UM Music Department for the masters of music degree in conducting, will conduct the UM Symphonette tonight at 8:15 in the Music Recital Hall.

Simmons, graduate assistant in music and assistant director of the Symphonette, will conduct works by Vivaldi, Mozart, Bach, Lalo and Beethoven.

Assisting in the program are Kristin Forssen and Ann Wright, both of Missoula, violinists; Kenneth Grant, Missoula, and Fred Inman, Billings, cellists; Linda Rhein, Helena and James Selway, Dillon, pianists.

Simmons conducted the Seattle Symphony Orchestra in a reading rehearsal of Herbert Inch's "Sinfonietta in D" on the UM campus May 4. He is a 1956 UM graduate in music.

The recital is open to the public without charge.

Plans Made for Study Abroad

A European study program for the 1968 spring and summer sessions is now being organized, said Robert Coonrod, dean of the college of arts and sciences.

A meeting for those interested in the program will be at 4 p.m. tomorrow in Liberal Arts 101.

The program is called the Northwest Interinstitutional Study Abroad Program. Sponsored by six universities, it enables 50-85 college students to study in London and Paris. It costs $1,800.

Under the program students study English history, Shakespeare, modern drama, art, political science and French and receive up to 22 residential credits, said Mr. Coonrod.

Except French classes which are taught by native speakers, classes are taught by faculty members

Open Registration Planned For Fall Quarter Session

UM will have open registration fall quarter, Laurence Gale, administrative vice president, said.

"The decision to have open registration was based on knowledge of problems that have confronted students unable to get classes required for graduation," Mr. Gale said.

He also mentioned problems involved with open registration, such as inadequate classroom space and inadequate staff. He added that if a course is offered more than once next year, all students will not be permitted to take it fall quarter.

Preregistration will be used winter and spring quarters.

Also there will be enforcement of an 18-credit limit, including hours for no-credit remedial English and math, basic ROTC and P.E. 100 courses. Students will be allowed to register for more than 18 credits only with the approval of the student's department chairman.

"The maximum credit load has not been enforced in the past," Mr. Gale said. "Too many students sign up for 15 hours plus five hours of remedial math or English, ROTC and a P.E. course. This is almost a sure ticket home."

He said enforcement of a maximum credit load goes with the use of open registration. Many students register for as many as 27 credits and then drop courses the first few days of class. This leads to the situation of courses closed in registration not being full after the first week.

With open registration, sections will be offered throughout the day to attempt to accommodate students and faculty who dislike early or late classes.

"A student may not be able to get a course at the time he wants it," Mr. Gale said. "But at least the course will be available at some time during the day."

UM Geologists Attend Meeting

Research studies by UM geologists comprised 10 per cent of the program at the 20th annual meeting of the Geological Society of America, Rocky Mountain Section, according to Robert W. Fields, professor of geology and chairman of the UM geology department.

The five-day meeting in Golden, Colo., began last Wednesday and ended Sunday.

Mr. Fields and John P. Wehrenberg, professors, Gary W. Crosby, assistant professor, Ronald B. Chase and E. H. Gilmore, both Ph.D. candidates, and Lee A. Woodward and W. David Kuenzi, UM geology graduates, presented research papers at the meeting. R. M. Weidman, professor of geology, was co-chairman of the structural geology session of the meeting.

Students Injured In Car Accident

Kathy Viestenz, a UM student, is in serious condition in St. Patrick's Hospital with injuries suffered in a one-car accident Friday night on Mullan Road, three miles west of Missoula.

Three other UM students were injured in the accident. Marilyn Lund and Bob Jackson are listed in good condition in St. Patrick's Hospital. According to a hospital spokesman, Miss Viestenz has two fractured legs and internal injuries, Miss Lund has a fractured leg and Jackson has several broken ribs.

The fourth student in the accident, Gene Presser, was treated for cuts and released from the hospital yesterday.

A Highway Patrol spokesman said the car left the right side of the road and turned end over end. The car was listed as a total loss. Jackson was given a ticket for reckless driving, according to a Patrol spokesman.

Delegates Told Protesters Prolonging Vietnam War

Protest demonstrations against the war in Vietnam contribute to the prolongation of it, according to John W. Pierson, a representative of the chief Conference Division of the Bureau of Public Affairs.

Mr. Pierson spoke to 2,200 Angel Flight and Arnold Air Society delegates at the National Conclave in Miami, Florida.

"The North Vietnamese newspapers thrive on the publicity of U.S. peace marches, citing them as examples of dissension in the United States," he said.

"It is the responsibility of each citizen to support the men fighting in Southeast Asia and share U.S. hope for early peace bargaining," he said.

He made the following points: The United States will de-escalate its war effort in Vietnam to the point necessary to reach the bargaining table.

Asked why the United States does not fight to win the war, he said, "We aren't out to destroy people and now there is not much left except people in Vietnam."

The United States fears enlarging the war to a nuclear one.

The Vietnam conflict is comparable to past German, Korean and Irish conflicts because divided sections of the countries attacked each other.

The North Vietnamese are trying to force communism on South Vietnam, expanding the civil war into a world conflict.

"Instead of being essentially a Vietnamese affair, it is now a world affair. That is why the United States is involved."

"As costly, dangerous and cruel as the Vietnamese conflict is, we must see it through, giving as much support as possible."

The communist expansion technique is three fold. First, it calls for the use of conventional arms similar to those used in Korea. Second, it calls for nuclear blackmail as in the Berlin crisis, the 1956 Suez Canal crisis and Cuba. Third, it calls for unused aggression.

The phases of unused aggression are to establish a political nucleus in a country, to bring outside aid to it and to promote civil uprisings.

Reviewing U.S. "moral obligations" to developing nations, Mr. Pierson said new countries are poor, have few well educated people and many economic problems stemming from increasing populations and decreasing food supplies.

Mr. Pierson blames economic instability as the major cause of political unrest in young nations.

Rifles Jam, Business Booms

Joseph G. Klemencic, a young Marine from Great Falls, was killed in action in Vietnam May 9.

The enemy bullet that killed him probably is not so much the reason for his death as the rifle he was carrying. The young Marine's last letter home, dated May 4, carried the account of an earlier battle in which his M-16 rifle and those of more than 50 men in his company jammed when the men tried to return enemy fire. A company normally comprises 80 men.

To use Klemencic's words: "I have to tell you about the fabulous M-16. It stinks. I wish I had my old M-14 back, and so do a lot of other guys."

It is possible but unlikely that 50 out of 80 of the world's most highly-trained men could not use the weapon.

It is possible also that the hot, humid climate of Vietnam, the rough treatment usually given military arms or defective ammunition could have made the rifles inoperable. If this is so, the rifles and ammunition never should have passed Defense Department tests.

If, as information indicates, a jammed rifle was responsible for Klemencic's death, the ultimate blame belongs not with the enemy but with the makers of the weapons and ammunition and a Defense Department that would allow such defective equipment to be issued.

It is contemptible of the Johnson Administration to ignore the warnings of such respected statesmen as U Thant and send America's young men into a "conflict" which quite likely will become World War III, but it is an indescribable abomination of any ideals America may have when Big Business can place useless weapons in our soldiers' hands and a Department of Defense either is too incompetent to discover defects or lets defective weapons pass efficiency tests without taking any action.

March Evades True Issue

An estimated 250,000 persons paraded in New York Saturday in support of American fighting men in Vietnam. Good. Every-one supports these men. No one wants to have American soldiers killed on foreign battlefields.

The true issue of the war, however, was evaded in this march. The issue is not a question of support for our soldiers in Vietnam, but whether we should send more men to be killed or whether we should pull out of the war completely and stop the slaughter of Americans, as well as military and civilian Vietnamese.

Other issues came to light during the march.

The New York Times News Service reported a youth, Lance Brady, was attacked, tarred and feathered by the marchers. This is a fine way to exhibit support for our fighting men who supposedly are preserving democracy.

When a youth cannot walk down a street without carrying an American flag and shouting support for the insane actions of a power-crazed government, is this a democracy?

During the march the issue of the American flag came to prominence.

The marchers, who attacked Brady screamed, "Get him! Kill him. He's a beatnik, he burned our flag."

If he burned a flag it was not at the march and the accusations were unfounded.

All the while, according to the Associated Press, hawkers were selling flags along the parade route. Naturally!

American soldiers probably would vomit at the sight of their "supporters" tarring and feathering an innocent youth while some peddler capitalized on a support march by selling flags for fun and profit.

The support march itself and the ideals of Ray Gimmler, its organizer, are commendable. The actions of the marchers and the profiteers are deplorable.

Law Student Says Congressmen Help

To the Kaimin:

I feel it necessary to correct a misleading implication of your editorial of May 11 concerning the channeling of publicity about research grants awarded to local professors through the offices of their local congressmen.

While it is not true in every instance that a professor finds it necessary to call on his congressmen for help in obtaining research grants, it is nonetheless true that such help is always available and is used in fact in many instances. While working as a Congressional Intern in Washington, D.C., I saw many instances where the help of local congressmen made the difference between the success and failure of an application.

I saw, and indeed worked on, the expediting of grants where time was of the essence and the early processing of the grant was essential to the success of the research. This work was unheralded and unrecorded. Many phone calls, meetings and presentations of additional materials not included in the professors' paper work are responsible for a good many successes of local professors. Perhaps most important is the fact that the agencies were responsive to the work of our congressmen. This responsiveness is a result of the high esteem with which our Montana Congressional Delegation is regarded. This esteem is a result of the very effective and informed representation which the entire Montana delegation gives to the people of this state.

Further, the policy behind this channeling of publicity is to call attention to the necessary cooperation between our scientists and our government. These notices from the offices of our congressmen are designed to draw attention to the tremendous success and achievement of serious scientists in our state, as well as the success of our congressmen.

Without the honor with which the Montana delegation is regarded, many honors coming to Montana professors would be thwarted.

Solberg Clarifies 'Athletic' Remark

To the Kaimin:

Miss Richey's report of my single, isolated, out-of-context comment at Leadership Camp was supremely accurate: "I would not give an athletic scholarship for $10." My primary tenet at the Camp concerned student activities (government, etc.) and the necessity that they relate to education. Thus, an athletic program (athletic scholarships if you must) is justifiable only as it fosters a better academic climate.

Indeed, I propose that the student community support all such justifiable activities, including music, drama, speech, intramurals, Fridays at Four, athletics, etc. But activities such as these should receive equitable support in terms of dollars per participant (an art "full-ride?") and GPA requirements. Now, am I interested in athletics, which implies athletes?

With John Hollow, varsity skiing coach, and Mark Behan, professor of botany, I authored a seven page proposal designed to upgrade an athletic program at the University of Montana in—you guessed it—skiing.
